The screenshot shows an IDE interface with a Java editor tab. The code is a snippet from a file named PopulatingClass.java. It includes imports for java.util.Properties and java.io.File, and a class definition starting with 'public class PopulatingClass {'. The code then reads properties from a file named db.properties, sets up a JDBC connection, and iterates through files in a directory named 'datas_2014'. A specific line of code is highlighted in blue: 'File folder = new File(my_files_directory);'. The status bar at the bottom indicates the application is a Java application running on Java 8, with the command-line arguments being the class name and the current date/time.

The screenshot shows an IDE interface with a Java code editor. The code is for a class named `PopulatingClass`. It includes imports for `java.util.Properties`, `java.sql.Connection`, `java.sql.DriverManager`, and `java.util.List`. The code uses `Properties` to get database URL, user, and password from system properties. It then creates a `File` object for a directory and lists all files in it. A `for` loop iterates through each file, printing its name and path. The code ends with a closing brace for the class definition. Below the code editor, there are tabs for `JavaDoc`, `Declaration`, and `Console`. The `Console` tab shows the command `javaw.exe` running at 10:37:41 on August 18, 2014.

The screenshot shows an IDE interface with a Java editor tab. The code is a Java class named PopulatingClass.java. It includes imports for java.util.Properties, java.sql.Connection, java.sql.DriverManager, and java.io.File. The code uses Properties to get database URL, user, and password from system properties. It then lists files in a directory and iterates through them to perform some database operation. The code ends with a closing brace for the class definition. Below the code editor is a toolbar with various icons. At the bottom of the interface, there are tabs for Javadoc, Declaration, and Console, along with a status bar indicating the application is running under Java 8.

The screenshot shows an IDE interface with a Java code editor. The code is a script for populating a database from a local directory. It uses JDBC to connect to a database and lists files in a folder to insert them into the database. The code includes comments, variable declarations, and a loop for processing files. Below the code editor, there are tabs for 'Javadoc', 'Declaration', and 'Console'. The 'Console' tab shows the command 'javaw.exe' running at 'C:\Program Files\Java\jre8\bin' on '18 août 2014 10:37:41'.
